

Published based on Ambassadors for Dogs!

Ambassadors for Dogs!

Announcing! Ambassadors for Dogs

*“obedience plus discipline equals
freedom for a dog”*

A new business has started. Why? We started Ambassadors for Dogs initially to increase the reach of my awesome dog trainer and his teachings. Who is this? Of course if you read my blog you'll see many references to John Spieser, founder of dogheart, right here in Ann Arbor.

I personally and along with numerous other folks think John's dedication and teachings are right in tune with the way many people feel about their dogs. That dogs need both respect and training to become useful members of our family and society.

Also, dogs really are at the mercy of humans when it comes to their lives. If a dog messes up because a human didn't take the time to teach him or her the right behavior, the dog stands a chance of an early death, either to euthanasia from over populated dog pounds, poor health care or getting hit by a car.

If more people knew how easy it is to train a dog and put the time into it the world might be a better place for all of us, people and dogs.

We invite you to stop by Ambassadors for Dogs and sign up for a free audio interview with John Spieser where he discusses his long line dog training method. We're just starting out and plan to add new content on a regular basis. Thanks for your support!

You can also find this article published on Ambassadors for Dogs!, and on the tag pages ambassadors for dogs, dogheart, john spieser, long line dog training method.