Orijen: The World's Best Dry Dog Food

Probably the most important decision you can make for your dog is to feed him or her the best dry dog food possible, if you happen to feed your dog dry kibble. The food that a dog eats each day makes the biggest impact of all on your dog's health. Feeding your dog a healthy dog food is crucial. Unfortunately for your dog, most major commercial dog food companies create dog food that is actually very bad for your dog's health. This is one of, if not, the main reasons that our dog's overall health has declined so much since the early 1960's.

Believe it or not, people and their pets are the only creatures on this planet that get degenerative diseases like cancer, arthritis and heart disease. This can be traced back to the realization that people consume the same food that happens to be high in fat, bad carbohydrates and sugar.

Now, drum roll please, the World's best dry dog food is called Orijen. Orijen is an award winning company headquartered in Canada that happens to be family owned. Orijen is a grain free, premium dry dog food made from locally sourced, natural ingredients. Our pick for the world's best dry dog food happens to be "slow cooked" at an unusually low heat which helps to preserve nutrients in the dog food that would otherwise be destroyed by high heats which is how most major commercial dog food companies cook their food. Yes, major commercial dog food manufacturers add vitamins to their food, but they are synthetic vitamins and don't work nearly as well as natural, whole food vitamins.

The key to Orijen's success is that it uses only "human grade" ingredients that are delivered fresh, never frozen each day, by companies they have verified, that also happen to be fished or farmed within their region. Their dry dog food follows their "biologically appropriate" philosophy of nutrition.

Orijen is grain free because although grains like wheat and rice provide cheap calories, their high carbohydrate content causes obesity, and veterinarians are increasingly citing grains and carbohydrates as primary causes of health problems common to dogs. Dogs just weren't made to digest most grains. Commercial dog food manufacturers started putting grains in the food to save cash and magnify their profits. Most of the major commercial dog food manufacturers are just worried about their profits and not worried at all about your dog's health.

The first five ingredients for Orijen Adult, the World's best dry dog food are fresh deboned chicken, chicken meal, turkey meal, russet potato and fresh deboned pacific salmon (a natural source of DHA and EPA). realize there aren't any grains, by-products or other questionable things on their ingredient description. Take a time out and compare the ingredient list you are currently feeding your dog to Orijen's ingredient list. This is just one of the reasons Orijen is the World's best dry dog food.

ORIJEN ADULT is made with a biologically appropriate ingredient ratio of 70% meat, 30% fruit and vegetables and 0% grains. It also includes veterinary selected botanicals and whole food supplements that soothe, nourish and tone the digestive tract while strengthening the liver. These also act like powerful potions that strengthen tissues, glands and organs in various sections of the body, like easing digestion or strengthening the heart.
