

Published based on Some Of The Quickest Ways For Potty Training Puppies

Some Of The Quickest Ways For Potty Training Puppies

There are a number of reasons why most people love to own puppies for a pet. Some people want them for companionship, others for protection or perhaps for income, but whatever their intentions are for owning one, potty training puppies is one of the most important things an owner needs to learn first.

Even if you are a first-time puppy owner, you need not to worry. Potty training a puppy is one of the most challenging jobs, indeed; however, it does not have to be as complicated or traumatic as what you expect it to be. Read about the quickest ways to house break your puppy successfully:

Designate a potty spot- whether you leash, crate, outdoor, or indoor train your puppy, you have to pick the spot and be consistent where you want him to go potty. Some people use a litter box, a pee pad, or a news paper for indoor and/or crate training, while a specific location in the yard would be ideal for out of doors or leash training. Be sure to introduce that spot to your puppy with supervision and make him/her use it in a regularly until it gets familiar with it.

Utilize a command or a trigger word - as most pups have instincts to understand and submit to commands, it is very important to stay consistent when picking a word or phrase when you want your puppy to do something. Like young babies, young puppies will have to listen and learn your language before they will understand and do things. Do not mixup pups with difficult commands, instead, use terms that are short and easy to recognize like "go poop" or "go potty" if you want them to.

Keep your puppy on a schedule- this is the key to potty training puppies success. Aside from feeding or playing with him at certain times, you'll also need to make a schedule when you'll need to take the dog out to go potty on a consistant basis. Puppies that are very young may have the need to go outside around every 30 minutes in the daytime as their ability to feel the need to do their business has not developed yet. None the less, they can be trained to become sensitive and used to a certain schedule, as they grow older.

Do not scold them- they are like babies that often make mistakes so you always have to be patient in potty training puppies. If the puppy misses or has an accident, just be gentle and say "no-no" and try again. Reward your puppy for an accomplished task- once your puppy has finally succeeded, try to use words or phrases like "good boy," "good girl," or "very good" to praise him or treat him with a good snack to let him know he is being rewarded for a job well done. Keep in mind that puppies are smart by nature so rewarding them or praising them might be a good method to encourage them to follow a set routine.

You can also find this article published on Some Of The Quickest Ways For Potty Training Puppies, and on the tag pages potty training a puppy, potty training puppies.