Teacup Chihuahua: How to Give Special Care to This Delicate Puppy

A Teacup Chihuahua is the smallest and one of the most popular dog breeds in the United States of America. Although it is loved by a majority of households, it's sad to note that the Teacup Chihuahua is not a recognized breed by major kennel associations such as AKC and CKC. This is because they are not known to be an official breed of the all famous Chihuahua breed of dogs.

Nevertheless, majority of people have adopted the Teacup Chihuahua as a pet for their homes. Even though the Teacup Chihuahua is a very much lively dog and is great to have as a pet, they are small in size and hence have a higher fragility level compared to other dogs. For this reason, the Teacup Chihuahua needs special attention by the owner, more than other dogs.

Are you a busy person? If so, do not go to adopt a Teacup Chihuahua. All dogs need love and attention. But a Teacup Chihuahua needs more of that. Their need for companionship can become a misery for you if you are unable to make time for it.

One of the first things you could do is check up on your schedule. Are you a very busy person? Will you be unable to commit yourself in to taking care of a Teacup Chihuahua? If so, refraining yourself from adopting such a dog would be better. Socializing is very important to Teacup Chihuahua's. Owners not having the time to socialize with them on a regular basis could result in your dog lacking self-discipline and being indifferent for everyday occasions.

Having children in your home could be bad for the Teacup Chihuahua. Their size is the main reason for this. Being small means that they can be stepped upon by mistake.

Since the teacup Chihuahua is very small, they have a likelihood of getting various diseases. They too come with a number of health problems such as high blood sugar, dehydration, thyroid and liver problems as well as respiratory problems.

We know how dogs love to lick the ground, especially if they notice any food lying around. Having fertilizers, cleaning agents and other chemicals lying around the area can be harmful for their body. Their small bodies can't take in these toxins and therefore can result in various illnesses.
